Excerpt: .a modified atomism.1 He believes that the operations of nature are performed by subtle streams of minute bodies ; but he does not believe that the world was made by a fortuitous concourse of atoms. This opinion, which those of Epicurus, his elder school, taught, is impious and vile. He believes that God created atomic matter and is the supreme orderer of its motions. Like More and Cud-worth he believes in a mind of the world, subtly interfused throughout the atomic structure of the universe, which acts as a medium between God and nature. Tis more likely that those strange effects (of memory) are not mechanical but vital, effected by the continuity of the great Spirit of nature which is diffused through all things. 2 When Glanvill leaves the broad way of cosmological speculation for the devious coverts of psychical research, this anima mundi...
