O. , 2004. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)56359291 Subject: Hazardous substances -- Safety measures -- Standards -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 businesses and unions, the Committee reaffirmed the importance of the HCS, and concluded that MSDs have become long and complicated because they are used for many purposes other than to meet OSHA requirements. OSHA has no control over such nonOSHA purposes. A majority of the Committee supported the use of a stand-ardized format such as that developed by the American National Standards Insti-tute. OSHA has indicated this preference in its enforcement directives for the HCS. To address concerns raised and to enhance the quality of hazard information pre-sented to employers and employees, OSHA has announced a new hazard-commu-nication initiative. There are three components of the program: (1) compliance as-sistance - including additional guidance materials, a new portal on OSHAs Web Site, and added outreach and education through new alliances; (2) an enforcement initiative; and (3) consideration...
